Dear friends, colleagues, and guests,

It's a pleasure for me to invite you to the 38th meeting of the Working Group on Prolamin Analysis and Toxicity to be held in Ancona, Italy, from 23 to 25 October 2025. I am very grateful to Profs Carlo Catassi and Maria Elena Lionetti for being the local hosts of the meeting. Special thanks also to Italian Association of Celiac Patients (AIC) and Double-EM for taking over the registration process. Finally, I want to thank all sponsors that make this meeting possible. Except the executive part, the entire meeting is open for all invited speakers, guests, and sponsors.

Please find the programme and information on location, hotel, and travel arrangements on this flyer, and please respond to the registration office in time using the registration form enclosed no later than 30 June 2025. Please note that registration is limited to 50 participants and that it is only valid after the registration fee has been paid before this registration deadline.

The Prolamin Working Group will take up discussions on analytical and clinical issues of gluten and coeliac disease as well as legal issues and the control of gluten-free food for people with gluten hypersensitivities.

We shall have a symposium on “Pediatric screening for celiac disease: hot topics” with four presentations of recognised experts in this field. As usual, there will also be presentations on analytical and clinical aspects of coeliac disease done by PWG member research groups as well as presentation from industries and celiac patients associations.

Looking forward to meeting you all in Ancona!

Carmen Gianfrani

Chairman of Working Group on Prolamin
Analysis and Toxicity
